Key Findings & Highlights

DXC began working with the M&L industry in the late 1980s when its predecessor company CSC began delivering managed services for credit compliance and credit insurance services. In the early 1990s, DXC expanded into default management services when it started providing asset management services to Resolution Trust Company. Next, DXC began delivering BPS services for consumer loan portfolios that have been securitized. In 2014, DXC began its cloud delivery for a non-U.S. bank delivering mortgage origination services. The M&L business expanded into Europe when DXC merged with HPE and its legacy EDS business.

Recently DXC has been partnering to support the modularization of the Hogan platform and other client legacy platforms to support introducing new functionality for clients. Currently, DXC is partnering with Temenos to create a SaaS-delivered auto finance offering. DXC intends to move all its service delivery to the cloud. To support this initiative, DXC has established partnerships with all the major Hyperscalers.
