Who Is This Vendor Assessment For?

Key Findings & Highlights

Founded in Grenoble in 1967, Capgemini is the largest European headquartered IT services provider, serving all the major European markets. Following the completion of its IGATE acquisition in 2015, North America is now its largest market.

Capgemini's current strategic priorities are based on three core pillars (accelerating growth, competitiveness roadmap, proactive talent strategy), underpinned by its i3 plan (industrialization, innovation, intimacy) which launched several years ago.

Capgemini continues to grow its focus on digital and cloud, supported by a number of key investments.

Capgemini has made clear its intention to be selective in its cloud computing offerings, mainly to avoid large upfront investments and competing with established cloud suppliers such as AWS, Google, Microsoft and telcos. It is not specifically targeting the IaaS space but is focusing on developing its orchestration services across hybrid cloud environments (client private cloud, partner cloud ecosystem, and private cloud) and legacy IT environments.
